Lee County Sheriff Carmine Marceno

Sirs,

The IT Contractors Union is currently investigating potentially fraudulent “shell companies” exploiting the H1B Visa Program across America, and has been actively doing so since at least August of 2024, using LCA Disclosure Data published by The United States Department of Labor.

Just recently independent journalists published videos regarding potentially fraudulent businesses in Texas exploiting the H1B Visa Program, specifically businesses that are clients of the Law Firm operated by Chand Parvathaneni.

As a result of those publications, The IT Contractors Union subsequently investigated companies in Florida that used The Law Firm of Sim, Parvathaneni and Brown to file Labor Condition Applications.

Specifically, these seven companies;

CLOUD HUB IT SOLUTIONS INC
NEVONEX IT SOLUTIONS INC
PRIMECREW TECHNOLOGIES LLC
TEK IQ SOLUTIONS INC
VCLOUD INFO SOLUTIONS INC
VIRAAZ TECHNOLOGIES LLC
VIRTUOSO INFO SYSTEMS INC

Which are tied to a single individual named Harika Vempati:

These seven companies may have received as many as 58 H1B Visas, between 2022 and 2024, after being approved, and selected for the H1B Visa lottery.

These companies appear to be "front companies", “Desi Consultancies”, or “Shell IT Companies”, (SHITCOs), operating from Registered Agent addresses, shared offices, virtual offices, or in some cases small office locations that are never occupied.

After calling all of them, only two actually resulted in being able to obtain any company information or do any business with them. Of those two, one used a live-operator answering service, which transferred directly to Vempati's Voicemail, and the other rang through to a man that may have been her husband.

Nevonex has a main phone number that matches the EMPLOYER POC PHONE for Virtuoso Info Systems Inc., and the number on the Virtuoso website contact page, <http://virtuosoinfosystems.com/contact>. As such these businesses are related, even though they appear to be operating separately, and they use that false appearance to increase the number of H1B Visas they can obtain for their common clients. These businesses show Different Physical address locations in Fort Myers, but both of those addresses are “Registered Agent” addresses, or “ghost offices.”

When checking Virtuoso in Fort Myers, an adjacent, (real), business in the same plaza was called. The agent for that business said they constantly get Virtuoso's mail, and that the operators of Virtuoso are never there, and keep weird hours. That person stated that they had to check repeatedly for a month before being able to contact them.

When the property manager for the address listed on LCAs filed by Nevonex, 2256 First St, Ft. Myers, was called, they confirmed that Nevonex has not been there for two years, and that they still continue to receive Nevonex mail. The contact address on the Nevonex website is different than that listed on their LCAs, and is confirmed that it is a RA address.

When calling the common contact number on the Nevonex and Virtuoso websites, it sounded like it rang thru to India. The Contact person said they were in America. But there was an abnormally Long delay in the call audio and a very bad connection, and it was impossible to get any information.

Upon calling Viraaz a person was reached but said it was his wife and her partners' business. The Office address for Viraaz appears to be an "Executive Suite" and not large enough to house the number of employees for which they have received Visas.

Just today, a video was published by Sara Gonzales, in Texas, in which she appeared with Texas State Attorney General, Ken Paxton, regarding the same conduct taking place in Texas:

The "business" in this Video is another client of Parvathaneni.

Based on the Totality of Evidence discovered, there is cause to believe that the operations of these businesses are more likely than not in violation of one or more Florida Statutes under Chapter 817, False Pretenses And Frauds, Generally, and that the State Law violations are being committed for the purpose of committing Visa Fraud, in violation of 18 U.S. Code § 1546, Fraud and misuse of visas, permits, and other documents. As such, this Letter constitutes notice to you in your Official Capacities, about the suspected criminal activity described, and a request for investigation and subsequent prosecution of that conduct.

Thank You For Your Attention To This Matter,
